

To Whom It May Concern:

Global Video was a true find. I have been using them exclusively for years now, and have been consistently impressed with their dedication to quality and the ability to meet any deadline. What's truly amazing is that they manage to do it and remain within the budget. I looked extensively for other media transfer facilities before finding Global. I was getting rates and delivery terms from several other companies, and asking fellow professionals for recommendations as well. Two of the producers I respect the most told me about Global- on the same day! Both work for large television production companies and had been using Global for years.

I met with Liz Sweeney and her staff and found them to be serious about their work and still very cool. These are the kind of people I like to do business with. I believe in trying to make work as enjoyable as possible, so I like to work with folks who take potentially stressful tasks in stride. And that's what Global does.

I have since referred Global to several of my colleagues and clients. And some of them had very tough format and volume challenges. And all have been impressed and had nothing but positive feedback about their experiences at Global. I really can't think of other companies or services I use that I have been more pleased with!
